

Information to the media

Stockholm, September 13, 2010

Elections 2010: SEB experts are ready to comment

On Sunday, September 19, Sweden goes to the polls. Opinion polls are not definitive about the outcome. It could be a majority government for the Alliance or the Red-Green block, or a minority government in a hung parliament. For Sweden, it is about choosing an economic policy path, primarily for the next four years, in a complex and challenging global setting.

What will be the impact of the election outcome on the economy, household budgets, companies and financial markets?

SEB's experts are ready to answer media questions before, during and after the votes are counted.

Robert Bergqvist, Chief Economist, +46 70-445 1404

Focus: Economics & Policy, market reaction / effects

Håkan Frisé, Head of Economic Research, +46 70-763 8067

Focus: Economics & Policy, market reaction / effects

Gunilla Nyström, Private Economist, +46 70-762 1534

Focus: The elections - household-related issues

Ingela Hemming, Business Economist, +46 70-763 8297

Focus: The elections - company-related issues

Johan Javeus, Chief Strategist, Trading Strategy, +46 70-325 5145

Focus: Economics & policy, market reaction / effects

For further information, please contact

Robert Bergqvist, Chief Economist

+46 70 445 1404

robert.bergqvist@seb.se

Press contact

Elisabeth Lennhede, Press & PR

+46 70 7639916

elisabeth.lennhede@seb.se